

TRAINING COURSE

Executive Briefing Safety Management System

Introduction

Introduction

The challenge for aviation organizations now is to develop not just a procedurally compliant Safety Management System (SMS) but one that actually 'performs', delivering a clear picture of your risks allowing you better control that can translate into value-adding results. Successful change is always introduced by top management and this one day briefing is therefore addressing top level management of the organisations, it makes top level executives aware of the SMS requirements and summarizes what is necessary from side so they can mobilise the necessary resources.
